

Monetary Benefits Notice

This is to advise readers that the advertisements and external product links contained on Science Doubt are for monetary benefit. Science Doubt receives monies in exchange for its visitors making purchases through these avenues. This applies to the Science Doubt's Mall, ads placed throughout the site, and links that are specifically included in its articles.

Be advised that links to other pertaining sites are not making payments for their inclusion. Request for details can be obtained by contacting the editor.